BONN, Dec. 4 — The seventh suicide in two months Bonn among senior civil servants and army officers was announced yesterday.

Police said that 62-year-old Arnold Wilfrding, who was on secret work in the Civil Defense Department of the food ministry, killed himself by taking an overdose of sleeping tablets.

His main job was in the branch that dealt with emergency feeding in time of war.

A government official said that there were no grounds for suspicion that he had given away secrets and his work had been entirely satisfactory.
